New Members Elected to DEAC Board of Directors

The Distance Education Accrediting Commission (DEAC) is pleased to announce the results of its election of institution members to the DEAC Board of Directors.

During the election, held in conjunction with DEAC's 92nd Annual Conference April 23-24, DEAC member institutions elected Dr. Caulyne Barron, Chief Academic Officer, Dunlap-Stone University and Mr. Chris Reeves, President, Shiloh University to each serve another three-year term through March 31, 2021.

“The DEAC is encountering an unprecedented level of expansion through new applications for accreditation and growth of its accredited members. We are grateful for the commitment that Caulyne and Chris are willing to make to support the mission and vision of DEAC and the integrity of its process,” said Dr. Leah Matthews, DEAC Executive Director. “Caulyne and Chris are continuing to serve with a distinguished roster of individuals who work tirelessly on behalf of DEAC and the institutions that participate in accreditation. We are most appreciative of their efforts.”

ABOUT DEAC

The Distance Education Accrediting Commission is a private, non-profit organization founded in 1926 that operates as a national accreditor of distance education institutions. DEAC's goal is to ensure a high standard of educational quality in the distance education institutions it accredits and a quality education for the students who annually study at its accredited institutions.
