

Ms. Jessica Park

Jessica Park is the President and CEO of Abraham Lincoln University. She leads the institution in its review and revision of strategic planning and institutional improvement initiatives and supports staff projects for institutional operations and finances, higher education compliance and institutional research.

Ms. Park earned a B.A. with honors in English Literature from Stanford University and a Juris Doctor degree from Stanford Law School. She is a licensed attorney in the state of California.

As a representative of Abraham Lincoln University and as a dean for the law school, Ms. Park served on the Distance Education Accrediting Commission Standards Committee from 2015 to 2022, chairing during her second term, and as a member registered law school dean in the Committee of State Bar Accredited and Registered Law Schools, an advisory committee to the State Bar of California's Committee of Bar Examiners. Following her election by member institutions of the DEAC in spring of 2024, she is serving her first three-year term as an institutional member of the Commission.
